

The combination of experience managing several public houses in the past, over fifteen years web design expertise and a love of great food, might initially sound an unpromising skill set. First impressions can be deceptive. Although Northern Living have created websites for a broad spectrum of businesses in all manner of industries over the years, the hospitality industry has become something of a speciality.

Working closely with independent brewing and pub chains such as Old Mill Brewery in Snath or individual restaurateurs and publicans means we can offer a unique and affordable bespoke service. Our inside knowledge of your industry means we are aware instinctively of the core requirements of a successful website for your business. We also understand the fiscal constraints on the industry at present and unlike some national design houses we won't produce a quotation which will sour your stock!
